on a rampage of appreciation

Zoe has super strength. Like a wildfire, her passion spreads. She doesn't let anything in her way or get her down. Since her fast in 1982, she has not stopped fighting for equality.

It was said that Alice Paul was a woman of such conviction to pass the Nineteenth Amendment that she rarely took her hat off. I think of Zoe as a woman who forever wears her feminist hat, using each moment to advance the lives of women and girls.

I am fasting for equality of rights under the law in the US. I am fasting to legislate treating adults without regard to gender. I am fasting to criminalize discrimination. But my heart wants so much more.

featured in March On March On is a film project documenting the National Equality March in Washington D.C. on October 11, 2009. Through this lens we will tell the stories of individuals affected by inequality. Their stories are the reason we march.
